The picture on the poster announcing the concert was taken in Mozambique following the recent devastating cyclone "Idai" in March 2019, which not only destroyed houses but wiped out a whole season's food crops. WFP responds to such calamities and all others, be they drought, civil war and population displacement, providing food aid to 86.7 million of people in around 83 countries each year. This concert is an event meant to gather support for the work of the United Nations World Food Programme, so any contribution, be it financial or other, is highly appreciated.
